CALL FOR PRESENTERS

We are looking for individuals in STEM fields to present posters about their research to the general public.

- Communicate your research to an uncommonly diverse audience.
- Network with other STEM professionals in both academia and industry.
- Look at your research in a new light – stimulate fresh and novel approaches.
- Learn about other exciting research projects in the Philadelphia area.

Submit non-technical summary to: www.starttalkingscience.com/submit

Summary submission deadline: Friday, June 14, 2019

Start Talking Science
Philadelphia 2019

About Start Talking Science: Start talking Science (STS) is a free public event where STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering, and Mathematics) researchers present non-technical posters to the community. We aim to increase the public awareness of – and interest in – cutting-edge, local research in order to make STEM more accessible. We hope to foster insightful conversations and connections while strengthening the communication skills of researchers. For more info, visit StartTalkingScience.com.
