We are excited to announce that the call for speakers to take part in Soapbox Science Philadelphia is now open!

Apply online here!

Deadline: March 2nd, 2020 at 10:00 am

We would like to invite women scientist from STEMM fields to join top women scientist as they take science to the streets. Soapbox Science is a global initiative that has run events in 40 locations across more than 12 countries. For the first time this year, Philadelphia will be hosting an event on April 18th, 2020 at Clark Park. Soapbox science aims to engage members of the public who may not have set out to interact with science or scientist, to promote the visibility of women in science, and to generate a direct interaction between scientist and lay audience. We want to transform public areas into an arena for public learning and scientific debate.

Soapbox Science events feature an all-women speaker list. Soapbox Science uses an inclusive definition of “woman” and “female” and we welcome applications from trans women, genderqueer women, and non-binary people who for the purpose of this event feel comfortable being female-identified.

The event has 12 speakers and runs over 3 hours. Each hour will host 4 speakers, who stand on their boxes for the whole hour, simultaneously, and engage with the public. Click on the video for more details: https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=cGD1-FbXHZo.

Additional information may be found at soapboxscience.org, but please feel free to contact us with any questions.

SoapboxScience.Philadelphia@gmail.com
Twitter: @soapbox_phila
Instagram: soapboxscience.philadelphia
Facebook: Soapbox Science Philadelphia